Topless allowed in public pools

Abstract description (EN):

Girls are by a law passed in march 2008 allowed to bath and swim topless at public pools in Copenhagen. The Danish campaign to allow topless swimming was inspired by a Swedish group called Just Breasts, which was formed after two women were asked to cover up their breasts by a lifeguard at a public pool near Stockholm. An advocate for the new law says: "We want our breasts to be as normal and desexualised as men's, so that we too can pull off our shirts at football matches."
